End of Jealousy in Fighting Forces of Country is Sought

Legislation to Bring About Unification of Command Likely

Washington, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Against a background of momentous reports from the Solomons, Capitol Hill attention focused today on proposals to revamp the fighting services, Washington wartime agencies and, moreover, congressional procedure—all aimed at greater military striking power.

Overshadowing all other proposals was that to combine the Army, Navy and Marine Corps into a single, coordinated fighting force, wearing one type of uniform and directed by one commander.

Other propositions engaging the attention of senators and representatives included:

1. Creation of a congressional "high command" committee to coordinate and expedite wartime legislation.

2. Sweeping reorganization of the federal agencies through establishment of an over-all Office of War Mobilization guided by an "economic general staff."

The three far-reaching propositions generally were aimed at erasing what some of their sponsors termed "jealousy" in the fighting forces, "red tape" in government and "duplication of effort" and slow action in congress.

Maas Plans Legislation

Rep. Maas (R-Minn.), ranking minority member of the house naval committee and himself a Marine colonel, proposed the amalgamation of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps into one fighting force, and said he would offer legislation to put it into effect unless the administration beat him to it.

In the senate Senator Lee (D-Okl.) declared the United States should have a "unified supreme command" with "one minister of warfare."

Declaring that the greatest weapon of warfare now is airpower, Lee said the supreme command "should be invested in an air general."

Some Capitol Hill observers speculated privately that the transfer of the Army-Navy football game to Annapolis, and restrictions on attendance, indicated an effort to remove the spirit of rivalry between the land and sea forces in wartime, and that this year's Army-Navy tilt may be the last for the duration.

Injunction Against Bookmakers Dissolved

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Oct. 30.—(AP)—In an opinion written by presiding Justice Lawrence E. Stone of Springfield the Appellate court of the Fourth district today reversed the decree of a St. Clair county circuit court and ordered dissolution of an injunction restraining approximately 1,400 Illinoisans from race bookmaking and other gambling operations.

The decision was on an appeal brought by the defendants who argued the St. Clair county court had exceeded its jurisdiction in issuing the injunction and that the court acted without evidence to prove a common conspiracy existed among the enjoined parties as charged in the complaint.

The opinion was filed with David F. Mellett, clerk of the court, who said all four justices were in agreement.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

London, Oct. 30.—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, chief draftsman of the covenant of the new League of Nations, believes that the erection of a new international authority—a real barrier against war—must be the immediate concern of the allies as soon as this conflict is ended.

"My friends of the left want great economic and social reforms," he told me during a conversation in his London home. "They hold that there will be no more war if there is enough reform under way."

"However, this seems to me to be putting the cart before the horse. They cannot convince large numbers of nations to launch out on great reforms forthwith, for reforms must depend on peace."

"We must make the people feel that further war will be prevented. Then the prestige acquired will help get social reforms carried through."

"This is the great thing nations must consider. We must have supremacy over war in order to get reforms. Unless you can create a secure base for your reforms they will be swept aside in the next convulsion."

Cecil believes that what is left of the League of Nations provides a fine nucleus for a new international organization.

He is anxious to help create an organization which shall lack the faults of the last. He would use the great marble palace on the shores of Lake Geneva to house a new and better order for death than as a mausoleum for dead hopes.

Cecil has all the fire and vision which he displayed when I first knew him back at the time of Versailles. Indeed, I believe that he has more because the passing years have given him new ideas on international problems. The winner of the Nobel peace prize has not been content to settle down in a rose-covered cottage of the past.

Sparkle

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Joe V. Godfrey, radio man second class, came home from the Solomon Islands with a story of a Marine who forgot the password.

He was challenged when he approached the sentry. "Don't shoot," he cried. "I'm a Marine, too."

And then remembering that Japanese have trouble pronouncing the letter "L," he quickly proved his point by saying, "Sparkle, sparkle, sparkle!"

Germany Can Never Take Russia Nor Japanese America, Willkie States

New York, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie says that after his world tour he is convinced that Germany can never take Russia and that the Japanese can never take the United States.

The 1940 Republican candidate for the presidency addressed a "March of Time" audience last night over the National Broadcasting Company's nationwide network, supplementing his recent report to the nation.

"Before I visited Russia," said Willkie, "it was almost unbelievable to me that any people could stand up under the constant pun-

Registry of Women of Nation Is Being Considered by FDR

Would Be Done to Find Where Good Supply of Workers Exists

Washington, Oct. 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt informed a press conference today that no decision had been reached yet on the issue of political service legislation but he added that the possibility of compulsory registration of women was under consideration.

The chief executive said such a registration would not mean that women would be ordered, by compulsion, to go here, there, or the other place to work. It would be aimed, he said, at trying to find out where the available supply of women workers exists and something of their fitness for war industry jobs.

This registration idea, Roosevelt said was a major topic of discussion when he met yesterday with the CIO-AFL labor war board. The board members talked, he said, of registering women of 18 to 65. Legislation would be required to authorize this canvass of women power.

Probably that would mean, the president said, that the survey could not be made before the end of the year. But, replying to a question, he said he did not think it should be implied that national service legislation necessarily would be delayed also until that time.

He emphasized that there had been no decision whatever on such legislation up to this point, remarking it still was in the study stage.

On Capitol Hill today, CIO President Philip Murray voiced "flat opposition" to pending congressional proposals for manpower control and urged that the president speedily convene a "conference committee of the nation" to plan the unification of all federal production, procurement and manpower agencies and resources.

Such a committee, Murray told a senate labor sub-committee on manpower, should include members of congress and representatives of the government, management, labor and agriculture.

Without recognition of the close relationship between manpower and production, Murray declared, "a discussion of a labor freeze or a labor draft is not merely futile nonsense, it is dangerous nonsense."

Roosevelt told his press conference he thought a report dealing with national service legislation would reach him soon from the labor-management committee of

U. S. Armed Forces Revealed in West African Liberia

American Air Fighters Score Heavily in Desert Campaign

By ROGER D. GREENE

Associated Press War Editor

Britain's desert armies were officially reported to have scored new gains in their seven-day-old offensive in Egypt today, and at the same time it was disclosed that American troops have been established in Liberia on the west coast of Africa.

While British and Allied troops lunged deeper into the axis line on a 35-mile front, U. S. Army fighter pilots alone were reported to have shot down 22 enemy planes in five days with a loss of only two.

Dispatches from the battlefield said German fliers were attempting to escape battle with the American airmen and avoided them altogether yesterday.

Raising the possibility of an allied "squeeze" against axis forces in North Africa, U. S. Army troops were said to have been quietly gathering in Liberia since June 21 and have already built two airports.

Liberia lies on the great bulge of the African continent, between the British colony of Sierra Leone and the French Ivory Coast colony. Its capital, Monrovia, is less than 800 miles airline from Vichy France's key naval base at Dakar. The size of the American contingent was not revealed but was said to include crack Negro troops.

Coincidentally, Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of Vichy's armed forces, returned to Vichy from an inspection of Dakar's defenses and a high French government official intimated that France stood ready not only to defend her colonies but to "counter-attack."

Leading Attempt Fails

On the Egyptian battlefield, Italian headquarters reported that axis forces yesterday repulsed a fresh British attempt to land seaborne troops behind the lines and beat off repeated attacks by strong allied armored units.

Dispatches from Cairo said Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's British 8th Army was slowly forging ahead through hidden axis minefields, attacking by night and consolidating their new-won positions in daylight.

Reports from the front indicated that the British were getting into position to strike at Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's main force, but said it might be several days before a show-down test of armored strength develops.

Reds Score Gains

On the soviet front, Red army headquarters announced that Russian tanks had won a critical battle of armored forces in Stalin-grad's northside factory district and reported that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive had smashed into German defenses in the Volga-Don corridor.

It was the 67th day in the siege. Led by tanks, the vanguard of a German infantry division drove up 50 to 100 yards at the edge of a factory in the northern industrial suburbs, but fell back as soviet tanks rumbled out to meet the assault. The Russians said 1,500 nazis were killed and 16 tanks destroyed in the battle.

In the Caucasus, the Russians conceded a new setback on the Nalchik plateau—the second in 24 hours—as the Germans threw large numbers of tanks into an assault apparently aimed at reaching the Georgian military highway to Tiflis.

On the Black sea coast, in the western Caucasus, Red Army troops were credited with dislodging the Germans from a fortified position and killing 1,200 axis invaders northeast of Tuapse.

Defendant Offers to Give Evidence in Treason Trial

Chicago, Oct. 30.—(AP)—U. S. Attorney J. Albert Woll said today that Walter Wilhelm Froehling, one of the six persons he is prosecuting on charges of treason, had offered to testify for the government, but that the offer had been declined.

Woll said the meagre statement that Froehling was willing to make was not considered of value to the prosecution and that he would not be called as a government witness.

The six defendants were charged with aiding the German reich by helping Herbert Hans Haupt, one of the six nazi saboteurs executed in Washington Aug. 8. Froehling was the 22-year-old saboteur's uncle.

Those on trial with him were his wife, Lucille Froehling; Haupt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Max Haupt, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin, friends of the family.

The first witness at the trial today was a Minneapolis painter and decorator, Alfred Harry Grunow, Froehling's cousin. He testified that at about 7 p. m. last June 21 he saw all the defendants sitting around a table in Froehling's home with young Haupt.

Converted in German

Their conversation was in German, Grunow said, but he could not hear what they said from where he sat in the living room, about 20 feet away. The witness explained that the conversation was too low for him to understand it.

Grunow related that he came down from Minneapolis to pay the Froehlings an unexpected visit on June 20, a short time after the saboteurs had been landed from submarines on the east coast.

He said Froehling told him that night he would have a bed partner, young Haupt, "who had been in Mexico or someplace and had just returned". Haupt climbed into bed with him about 5 a. m. the next morning.

The conference between Haupt and the defendants took place that night. When it was over, Haupt went off with the Wergins, Grunow said.

Movements Traced

Other witnesses yesterday also testified that Haupt was with the defendants after his secret arrival in the United States.

The government, which for two days offered testimony intended to establish Haupt's status as an

American Troops Are Stationed in Liberia

London, Oct. 30.—(AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Monrovia said today it was officially announced that American troops, including Negro units, had been in Liberia since July. It said two airports had been constructed.

Liberia is on the west coast of Africa at the southwest edge of the great hump of the dark continent.

Liberia, which originated in the efforts of several American philanthropic societies to provide for freed American slaves, was constituted as a republic in 1847.

The republic, which has an area of about 43,000 square miles and a coast line of about 350 miles, lies between the British colony of Sierra Leone, on the west, and the French colony of the Ivory coast on the east. On the north it borders on French Guinea.

Dakar, France's important colonial harbor and naval base in Senegal, is between 750 and 800 miles airline northeast of Monrovia.

People Entitled to Know of Waste, Says President of T. P. W.

Washington, Oct. 30.—(AP)—George P. McNear, Jr., president of the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad, asked Joseph B. Eastman, Director of Defense Transportation, today to agree to a hearing of the road's problems by a special referee named by the senior judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago.

"The American people who are becoming concerned about the conduct of this war have a right to know the true facts about the wastes of manpower, motive power, equipment and materials on our railroads due to featherbed rules," McNear said in a statement which announced his request to Eastman.

McNear's line was taken over by the government last March after a dispute over labor questions.

Mountain Town in Ozarks Levelled by Tornado in Night

Survivors Forced to Abandon Rescues to Combat Fires

(The following description of Berryville's tornado was provided by Miss Clyde Greenhaw, city editor of the Harrison Times, who accompanied the first outside ambulance crew into the community after the storm.)

Berryville, Ark., Oct. 30.—(AP)—At least 27 persons were killed and more than 200 injured, many critically when a tornado leveled more than half of this Ozark mountain town late last night.

Several of the injured were so badly injured that physicians advised against transporting them to hospitals.

Fires broke out immediately after the tornado, forcing the survivors to drop their rescue operations for a time to prevent spread of the flames through the splintered wreckage.

Approximately 25 persons were trapped and injured in the collapse of the Missouri & Arkansas railroad station. Most of them were waiting to board a north-bound train.

Without hospital facilities, the stricken town of 1,455 population had only three physicians to care for the scores of injured.

The only drug store was demolished and most of the drugs and medical supplies were destroyed, making it impossible for the three doctors to do more than give first aid until supplies arrived from nearby towns. Doctors and nurses were sent from Harrison and Eureka Springs and several loads of injured were taken to hospitals in other communities.

A passenger bus came through the stricken town 30 minutes after the disaster. Its passengers alighted or stood up to make room for some of the worst injured being taken to the Harrison hospital.

President Urges Everyone to Vote

Washington, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Declaring the United States was now engaged "in an all out war to keep democracy alive," President Roosevelt today urged all citizens to vote next Tuesday.

The president asked employers to so arrange work schedules that they and their employees may cast their ballots without loss of pay to workers for reasonable time off.

The president read his formal statement on the elections at a press conference after which reporters asked how he was going to vote.

He replied he would either by absentee ballot or in person in his home district of Hyde Park, N. Y. The president would not say in detail how he was going to mark his ballot, but when asked whether it was a fair inference that he would vote against Representative Fish, Republican candidate for reelection in the chief executive's home district, replied in the affirmative.

New Zealand Army Under U. S. Command

London, Oct. 30.—(AP)—A Reuters report from Wellington said today that New Zealand Defense Minister Fred Jones had announced that the New Zealand Army in the Pacific had been placed under United States command.

New Zealand air force squadrons were said also to be operating with the Americans in the south Pacific.

Former Editor's Bravery Is Talk of Fighting Men in Western Desert

Cairo, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The bravery of John Dun, 50, of Tucson, Ariz., a former editor of the Toledo (O.) Times was the talk of the western desert today.

Dun, an American field service ambulance driver, saved ten wounded men under intense enemy fire and alone brought three ambulances to safety the night of Oct. 23-24—the night the allied offensive began.

The three ambulances were mired in the soft sand of the Qatari Depression within sight of the enemy lines. Armored vehicles had tried to haul them out but could get no traction.

The enemy, meanwhile, had laid

Prediction

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The United States is "just blind lucky" if the war is over in less than five years. Major Baird Helfrick, chief assistant to the state selective service director, reported to law enforcement officers at an F. B. I. conference.

"Ten months after we were attacked we are still too weak to show sustaining power in offensive warfare," he said at the conference yesterday.

Major Helfrick described comparisons between the last war and the present one as "staggering," but added that "we can win, we are strong enough, if we are willing enough to sacrifice."

Jap Assault Expected

A terrific Nipponese naval onslaught in the Solomons area was expected to break shortly against admittedly inferior numbers of United States warships but, meanwhile, allied airpower lashed out at enemy vessels, planes, troops and installations over the wide battle front.

The Navy reported yesterday that the American Marines and Army troops on Guadalcanal broke up three additional Japanese assaults on Oct. 27 (Solomons Islands Time). The airfield defenders were thrown back by one heavy attack but countered quickly and regained their positions.

Importance of the airfield, captured by the U. S. Marines early in August and desperately sought by the Japanese since, has been evidenced by the almost daily American aerial attacks on nearby enemy bases.

Jap Guns Destroyed

The latest air bombardment announced by the Navy struck Japanese gun emplacements on western Guadalcanal, destroying an anti-aircraft battery and an ammunition dump.

The Japanese base in Rekata Bay in the central Solomons, the American planes set shore installations aflame and destroyed four seaplanes boosting the Japanese plane toll to 413 since the campaign started.

Allied aircraft under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian command continued to blast at enemy shipping in the Solomons. Flying Fortresses straddled-bombed five unidentified vessels at the Japanese naval base at Buin at the southern tip of Bougainville island causing a heavy explosion on one ship.

Advance in New Guinea

Simultaneously, Australian troops were reported by MacArthur to be hurling the Japanese back in New Guinea. A bayonet charge yesterday (Australian time) resulted in capture of 20 prisoners and helped keep the allied advance unchecked.

An example of Japanese treachery in the South Pacific warfare also was made public by the Navy yesterday in releasing a dispatch written by Sgt. Richard T.

Terrific Assault by Japs Expected Soon in Solomons

American Successes on Guadalcanal Told by Navy Dept. Today

BULLETIN

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—

(AP)—The San Francisco Bay area underwent an air raid alert of more than one hour today. The all clear was sounded at 1:38 p. m. Central War Time.

Washington, Oct. 30.—(AP)—

The Navy announced today that American troops on Guadalcanal had destroyed 12 Japanese light tanks in the last week and that in the last two days torpedo boats had scored a torpedo hit on a Japanese destroyer which was engaged in reinforcing enemy troops on the island.

A communique on the Solomon islands activity said that land fighting on Guadalcanal island on the last two days had been confined to small skirmishes, but American aircraft were continuing to bomb and strafe enemy positions west of the airfield. In the late afternoon of October 28 (island time) American fighter planes destroyed two enemy seaplanes at Rekata bay. On the morning of October 29, enemy bombers attacked the American positions on Guadalcanal, but all their bombs dropped in the water, the Navy said, and no damage resulted.

This was the second report by the Navy of torpedo boat action in the Solomons battle, a torpedo boat attack during the night of October 14-15 being credited with a probable hit on a Japanese cruiser.

The 12 tanks mentioned brought to 17 the number of such enemy armored weapons destroyed in recent severe fighting on Guadalcanal.

Today's communique did not report details of the action in which the 12 tanks were destroyed, but naval quarters in Washington thought it likely the tanks were used in two recent assaults in which the Japanese have succeeded in piercing the American lines. In both cases, counterattacks succeeded almost immediately in throwing back the enemy and restoring the original American positions.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Genesis 'Poem of Creation' Teaches Woman's Equal Relationship to Man

Text: Genesis 2:18-24; Matthew 19:3-6; John 2:1-5

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Years ago I was studying the passage from Genesis in this lesson and other parts of the earlier chapters, under guidance of the late Chancellor Nathaniel Burwash of Victoria University. Dr. Burwash was a devout scholar of enlightened mind and heart, more concerned about revealing the beauty and spiritual truth of the Bible than about prosaic and literalistic interpretations.

He reminded us that the Book came out of an East where things were expressed in imagery with a wealth of parable and allegory and poetry.

The early chapters of Genesis he expounded as "a poem of Creation," and when he came to the account of the creation of woman, he interpreted it in this way, stressing the essential oneness of man and woman "bone of my bone, and flesh of my flesh," and the conception of woman as formed from the rib—not from a bone of the foot that man should lord it over her, or from a bone of the head that she should lord it over him, but from man's side that she should be his equal, companion and helpmeet.

He had been proceeding along this line for most of the lecture period when the voice of a little man piped up from the back of the room: "Professor Burwash, do you think that Adam was put to sleep so he wouldn't feel any pain when the rib was taken away?"

Dr. Burwash was a very solemn man, genial and friendly, but I had never seen him laugh. This day he threw himself back in his chair with a loud guffaw as he said in very solemn tones: "O, you poor, bald Occidental, you do not understand the beautiful poetry of the Hebrew mind."

Let us beware of a similar misunderstanding. The Bible is nowhere a richer and safer guide than in all that concerns the sexes and the relationships of man and woman in marriage, home, the family and society.

Just as man at his worst has abused and misused the most precious things that God has given, making his soul which might be attuned to love and righteousness an instrument of hate, and his wonderful and beautiful body an instrument of violence, so man at his worst has made the sex instinct an instrument of debasement and foulness. But we should not allow that to blind us to all that is noble and good.

We speak of "holy matrimony," and there is nothing holier than a relationship of mutual love and loyalty, where two souls share privilege and responsibility, bearing and forbearing, in lives that are pledged to truth and right. It is on such a foundation that the Christian home is built, and nothing less could be fully adequate as an environment for the bringing into the world of new lives.

This is the ideal that we shall be studying in future lessons. The fact that it is not always attained should not lessen the thought of it as the only adequate standard.

Perhaps, considering all the problems and difficulties of marriage and home in the most intimate relationships of which man is capable, the marvel is not that so many marriages fail, but that so many succeed.

WATCH YOUR PETS
My read Editor—From time to time ads appear in various papers offering to purchase live dogs or cats.

Our experience has shown that quite often such ads cause the dog and cat thieves to steal many many pets.

Our convictions were clinched more than even a few days ago when a news item appeared, stating that, in one town, high school students were scouring the town picking up any cat owned or otherwise, which they could catch—simply to pack in a crate and ship to an unknown destination for a fee of 50c to 75c which was offered in the ad.

I trust that you will find space in your paper to warn all your readers to be extremely careful of their cats and dogs to prevent any such thievery. Also please urge citizens to take the necessary steps to prosecute any one found stealing such dogs and cats.

In appreciation of any attention you can give this, I am
Yours very truly,

At Grand Detour

The Rev. John H. Cable, for more than 25 years a teacher in Christian institutions, will speak at 7:30 Sunday evening in the American Sunday school Union chapel of Grand Detour. Dr. Cable is a member of the Moody Bible Institute faculty and prior to coming to the institute, he taught at Missionary Training Institute, Nyack, N. Y. for 25 years.

Successive promotions saw Dr. Cable rise from Wilson Academy instructor in 1915 to dean of the Training Institute's faculty in 1927. He taught around the curriculum at Nyack, his standby during the entire period being New Testament Greek.

Dr. Cable took his undergraduate work at Bethany and Geneva colleges, later receiving his theological training at Western (Pittsburgh) and Biblical (New York) seminaries.

A regular contributor to Moody Monthly and the Alliance Weekly, Dr. Cable has written "Christ of the Four Gospels," a correspondence course in Christian evidences, a thesis on miracles, and the educational chapter in "After Fifty Years."

Dr. Cable has preached in many of the leading churches of the country. He still devotes his weekends to preaching, and is a frequent Bible conference speaker.

There will be a service flag dedicated to honor the boys from the community who have entered the service.

Here's What Illinois Candidates Say in Their Campaigns

Chicago, Oct. 30—(AP)—Republican and Democratic leaders charged headlong at each other in campaign speeches as the fight for the Illinois voters' ballot heightened in intensity last night. Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, in a Chicago address declared that "lies, deceptions and smear are the weapons of the Communists and have been adopted by the Kelly-Nash machine in unholy alliance to confuse the people in its desperate attempt to grasp more political power."

A guest speaker for the Democratic ticket in Illinois, U. S. Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri asked an audience at Carlinville, Ill., to "give our president the most intense and wholehearted stand behind him in this grave national crisis."

A vast defense program adopted before the United States entered the war, he declared was accomplished "over" the objections of the Martins, the Bartons, the Fishs, and you from Illinois had your Senator Brooks x x x."

Gov. Dwight Green, speaking here on behalf of the Republican candidates, said the people of Illinois "in marking (the ballot) can determine whether the treasury of this great state shall be turned over to the looters who have bankrupt Cook county x x x while the youth of this nation is fighting the fight for liberty."

Rep. Raymond S. S. McKeough, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate, told a University of Chicago rally that he, among other things, would work for the abolition of the sales tax and the poll tax, and for a permanent peace based upon extension of the principles of the Atlantic charter and on the four freedoms.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly told voters in a radio speech that the only question before the people is this: "Are we going to stand by our president x x x or are you going to run out on him?"

Tuberculosis always increases during wartime. It is already on the uptake in large industrial cities in this country.

Garden Clubs of Illinois Plan Judging School

Members of Garden clubs from all over the state are enrolling for the Fifth Judging School of the Garden Club of Illinois, which is to be held Thursday and Friday, Nov. 5-6, at the Palmer House in Chicago. Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister of Kenilworth is chairman of the school this year.

The course, primarily for flower show exhibitors and the judges of exhibits, will offer timely information on the subjects of "Judging Horticultural Classes" and "Judging Artistic Classes" in flower shows. These subjects will be covered by some of the foremost authorities in the country.

The first morning session will be opened at 10 o'clock by Mrs. Raymond Knotts, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc. She will be followed by Prof. J. B. Wingert, department of floriculture, University of Illinois, who will present his subject in general discussion, to be followed by practical judging of specific horticultural exhibits.

The afternoon meeting will be opened at 2 by Mrs. O. W. Dynes, who has served as chairman of the Chicago Flower Show for many years.

The lecturer of the afternoon on artistic classes will be Mrs. Walter Brewster of Lake Forest. Mrs. Brewster is a nationally-known patron and connoisseur of fine arts, and in her coverage of the artist classes she will include the application of art principles in the judging of artistic flower arrangements.

Examinations, which are optional, will be held on Friday morning, Nov. 6, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. A member must pass the examination for three years in order to be placed upon the Accredited Judge's list.

The purpose of the judging schools, which are given by the Garden club of Illinois and other garden club organizations in the country, is to raise the standard of the community shows—the local flower shows, which are credited with doing much to stimulate interest in horticulture in the various localities. The Judging School aids these local flower shows in two ways—by providing accredited judges so the shows will be fairly judged, and teaching exhibitors of the show how to grow and exhibit their plant material in the best possible manner.

Earning Own Pay Checks Can Be Satisfaction

By RUTH MILLETT

There is one group of housewives who will be better off if the war pushes them into paid jobs.

It won't be the women with small children who may have to go to work to help support them.

It won't necessarily be the women whose children are all of school age—though many such women could take on jobs without actually neglecting their families.

The group that has everything to gain and nothing to lose by going to work in offices and factories consists of women who make a home for one man and who have up until now told themselves that keeping a husband comfortable and happy was a full-time job.

Real Work is Better Than Time-Killing

Those women are going to learn a lot when they do get jobs.

First, they will learn what satisfaction there is in an earned pay check. They'll have real fun buying war bonds out of their own money, buying gifts with dollars they earned themselves, and getting new clothes and new things for the house out of their own earnings.

Then, if their jobs are at all congenial, they will discover how much happier they are when they are really busy than when they had to go to club meetings to kill time.

It will do their egos good too. Just knowing that they are capable of holding down a job will give them a new feeling of self-reliance.

And most of them will find out that they speak their husband's language more intelligently when they, too, are wage earners.

Such women have everything to gain and nothing to lose by getting out and finding jobs for themselves. Since that is so—it's a wonder there are still so many of them making a full-time job of keeping a man (who is away from home at least eight hours of every day) happy and pleased with the little woman.

HONOR SON

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Keenan of South Dixon entertained 20 relatives and friends at dinner recently, honoring their son, John, who has been called to service. Gifts were presented to John, who left Thursday for Nashville, Tenn., to become an aviation cadet.

BRIDGE-LUNCHEON

Mrs. George Beier entertained at luncheon and contract yesterday at "Beiercliff" for her bridge club of eight. Mrs. George Banta is to entertain next.

A Thought for Today

And a voice came out of the throne,

And touch'd their golden harps, and hymning praised God and his works.—Mil-

American War Planes

Evidence is accumulating that American-made bombers and fighters really are good, and that the violent criticism to which they were subjected for a time was erroneous.

It has been difficult to get at the truth because so many of the pertinent facts were held to be military secrets. Some of them unquestionably should not be discussed. Others were held back, apparently, through that same excess of secretiveness which in other fields and on other occasions has proved unnecessary, unjustifiable and harmful to the national morale.

Now, stung by criticism, American brass hats have permitted publication of data comparable to what the British never held back. In the light of that information, experts are able to say that the later American planes are at least as good as their counterparts in England, Germany and Japan.

If our planes were as bad as rumor said, then we could not help wondering whether our pilots and their crews were being destroyed wholesale.
But the fact is that on every front our planes have taken toll of the enemy two, three and four to one.

American pilots are good. None are better. We can be excused if we feel that none are quite so good. But man for man, American flyers are not three or four times as good as German and Japanese flyers. They are not enough better to inflict the damage they have unless their planes were substantially as good as the enemy's.

Then there was the unfortunate story—could it have originated with a psychological saboteur?
—that the British were trying to divert us from the building of large, long-range planes so that after the war we should not be in position to dominate the international airlines.

The fact, fortunately, dispels these wonders and rumors. They show that our planes were designed for protection of a country shut off from potential enemies by broad oceans, while the British were designed for a nation just over the board fence from international criminals.

They show, also, that our older models were being contrasted with the newest British and German adaptations, and did not show up well, but that model for model and use for use, we now have planes at least as good as those of any other country, and in most instances better.

Apparently we did get away to a slow start, but now have more than caught up. Which is all to the good.

LUNCHEON PARTY

CHAPTER XVIII

WHEN Nancy Hale came in at 10 this Tuesday morning,
Blythe prepared at once to leave.
She couldn't trust herself to stay here and face the other girl, even with Pop.

"I'll let go of myself and say something before I'm ready!" she half whispered, ducking into a sweater.

"Leaving, darling?" Nancy asked, sweetly.

"Yes," Bly avoided her eyes.

"I'm sorry you must. Seems like I hardly ever see you much now."

Blythe let that pass unanswered.
She looked out a window. Pop spoke up heartily.

"Why'n't you two girls take off
this afternoon and go to a movie, mmmm?"

Doggone Pop! It was just like him, Blythe knew; trying to be generous, cordial, kind. But he didn't know the score here.

"We'll all be together at noon anyway," he went on, genially.
"Mom's having us all for lunch."

"She is?" Blythe hadn't known that.

"Oh, yes!" Nancy appeared happy about it. "Mrs. Miller phoned. With Norman and Duane!"

That really messed up things, to Blythe's thinking. But she'd have to go through with it. Have to sit there in her own home, entertaining Nancy Hale and feeling like a hypocrite all the while!

But, then, on second thought, it might be just as well to stay near Nancy as much as she could. She might learn something further. If Nancy had promised the gamblers' agent to drug Norman and Duane on Wednesday night, the more she stayed with them now—

"I'll scoot home and help Mom," she announced, and departed.

OUT in the cold air waiting for the trolley, she thought it all over again. Since Heavy Underwood is out of Thursday's game, and the team weakened by that,
I must do everything I can not only to trap Nancy but to keep Norman and Duane in fighting spirits. They've got to work harder than ever against State U.
Just got to!

She had to swallow to down a tightness in her throat. Every time she thought of Nancy, she wanted to cry. Cry for the sheer shame of it. Her first quick hatred of Nancy, her first surging desire for revenge, had long since passed;

all she felt now was an abiding sense of tragedy and shame.

Shame for the pretty widow, and sympathy for her baby son.

"I'll go get him and take him with me!" Blythe suddenly whispered. "Bless his heart!"

She went back to the office and told Nancy, then ran upstairs to gather in baby Scooter and his coat and his beloved puppy, Link.

At home, later, Mom Miller baked a special little "private pie" for Scooter alone at luncheon.

While the family and the four guests ate their luncheon, Blythe noted that Nancy seemed utterly without regret or worry. She marveled that the other girl could be so wholly brazen about her plotting.

"I would be jumpy as heck," Bly told herself, watching Nancy closely. Norman was watching Nancy, too, she noted. Well, that much was all right. Undeniably Nancy was pretty. And usually Norman Dana made a pest of himself paying attention to Blythe.

Big Duane just smiled all the while and said little.

Maybe—yes!—Blythe suddenly felt that she understood. Tomorrow night, Wednesday, Nancy would have to have both Norman and Duane as dinner guests in her own cute upstairs apartment.

This was essential to her scheme.
And so, Nancy was "playing up" to Norman now! Laughing and talking with him in pretended friendliness, just to be sure he was flattered sufficiently to come.

She would already feel sure of Duane. . . . Blythe was appalled more than ever at the widow's calculating, conscienceless nerve.

"It's just like some of the early troubles the Japs and Germans handed us," Pop was saying, between forks. "We have to expect the unexpected, the setbacks.
We have to weave with 'em, and come back scrapper than ever before, lads. It's the only way to triumph in the end. The only way."

One Year's Training

United States senators have had a field day with amendments to the bill drafting youths of 18 and 19 for military service. While unwilling to admit it, some of the senators appear to have been working for a measure that would appear to draft the youths, thus pleasing the administration which demanded the bill—while at the same time inserting provisions that would keep the lads out of battle, thus pleasing the parents. In this way the boys would be soldiers and still not soldiers. Other senators actually struggled for a delay as a concession to youth.

It would have been better to decide at the outset whether the boys should not have been drafted into the army, but put to work on farms or elsewhere, thus releasing more matured men for army service.

We venture the idea that it would be possible for the army command, at insistence of the administration, to override the wishes of congress in respect to the amendment concerning a year's training for every youth so drafted, before he is sent into battle, if military necessity so dictates.

The man Bilbo of Mississippi calls attention to what he says was the first draft in history. It took place 3432 years ago, while the children of Israel were wandering in the wilderness. Moses was commanded:

"Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel . . . From 20 years old, and upward, all that are able to go forth to war in Israel: Thou and Aaron shall number them by their armies . . ."

Scripture relates that from this draft Moses and Aaron secured an army of 603,520 men—a strong force for that time. There were exemptions, too. Members of the tribe of Levi were exempt from the draft, being of the priestly class and ordained to minister to the souls of men. Today we would say clergymen are necessary at home to maintain morale by keeping religion alive.

Returning to scripture—the biblical draft was preparedness for battles to conquer Canaan.

Good Idea

Agriculture Secretary Wickard suggests that the 2,000,000 families now trying to exist on sub-marginal farms be moved onto more productive acres which are crying for labor.

If that could be done it would go far toward meeting the farm labor crisis and assuring the United Nations of the food they will need next year.
Such an ideal undoubtedly is unattainable.

But we can hope that positive steps will be taken to translate the idea, at least in part, into action.

Durable Goods

Members of the RAF work much in shirt-sleeves. Therefore each of them is permitted to have a new shirt once in every nine months.
WAAF women, not working in shirtsleeves, must make their shirts do for a full year.

RAF men must make socks last four months;
trousers six months; ties, jackets, boots, caps, vests nine months; great-coats four years. WAAF women must make stockings do six weeks; jackets, brassieres, corsets and suspender belts nine months;
pajama and sweaters two years.

Tough war on this side of the water, isn't it?

The five tire limit means that more autos will last until they're paid for.

The average pianist's fingers move 2,000 times per minute, while the neighbors move just once.

Fair Enough

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Oct. 29—The new deal people certainly are doing something very funny in the New York campaign. You don't always understand their motives plainly from their actions and in this case you have to sort of sniff them out.

Everybody knows that President Roosevelt knows that John Bennett, the incumbent attorney general, and the Democratic nominee against Tom Dewey, is not a new dealer. In particular, he is anti-Communist and this means that he is opposed to a lot of New York's new dealers who are either Communists, guest Communists, or Fellow Travelers. Therefore the president spared from his war effort the time and energy to try to lick Bennett in the Democratic state convention. Bennett is known as Jim Farley's man, but that is not a fair way to speak of him. It is unfair, because there is a note of disparagement in the expression. It suggests that he is not his own man. Bennett could be fairly called a Farley man, however.

Farley accepted the president's challenge, looked him dead in the eye, and stood toe-to-toe in a political slugging match which wound up in a defeat for Roosevelt. There is just no other way about it. They met and Farley won.

Then the little parasite political club, largely composed of unassimilated Europeans and devoted to Socialism and Communism in equal halves and known as the American Labor Party, held a convention in a telephone booth and nominated an unidentified man named Dean Alfange, who is a Tammany Democrat.

Mayor LaGuardia and Dave Dubinsky, the president of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, are out in support of Alfange, who probably won't pull more than a nickel's worth of votes, but all he does poll will be filched from Bennett. Nobody—least of all Alfange himself—has any notion that he will run up a vote and they all know his candidacy is serving no purpose but to cut down Bennett and assist the Republican, Dewey, to get elected.

It took the president about six weeks after the convention to indorse Bennett and that indorsement was so cold that Bennett came down with chilblains. Since then Roosevelt has had to warm it up a little bit and this he did in his unqualified indorsement a few days ago. However, Bennett and Farley and the whole public heard him the first time, Bennett and Farley have no reason to feel either gratitude or obligation and any voters who are turned against Bennett by the president's influence in August are not likely to be converted to him by Roosevelt's later opinion of him.

What does this add up to? Well, let's see. Two and two is four and eight is 12, times three is 36 and carry seven—

Well, excuse my simple, homespun arithmetic, but in my book, it adds up to a deliberate intention by the new deal crowd to beat their own ticket, that of the Democratic party in the state of New York, and elect a Republican, whom they profess to view with great alarm, for the forehanded and ulterior purpose of discrediting Farley and wresting from him the control of the New York state nominating convention. It is no sure thing that a defeat of Bennett would discredit Farley, however, because the beaten Democrats would be sure to realize that the fault was not Farley's leadership but dirty work at the crossroads.

There is nobody stupid enough to believe that LaGuardia and the rest of the new deal radicals who are insisting that Alfange has a chance actually believe anything of the kind. They know he hasn't a Chinaman's chance and plainly they have no intention but to mow down Farley for 1944. And they are very apprehensive of what Bennett might do as governor, because he and Farley both know all the personalities and tricks of the Communist crowd and their new deal Fellow Travelers and would address themselves vigorously to the business of unmasking the frauds who call their Communism and slightly less forthright radicalism, liberalism.

How is that for arithmetic

Yes,

This rain might prove a tougher opponent for the Dukes than the Ottawa Pirates.

The Dixon squad in every game played this year has given away weight to its foes. In order to counteract this deficiency Lindell has worked out a flashy offense built around reverses, fake bucks and a lot of passes. In this type of attack, it is necessary that two, three or even four of the backs handle the ball.

When the ball is wet and slippery, fumbles are bound to result; hence, it is wise to shift to a straighter brand of power football, a type that gives all the advantages to the heavier team.

And the Pirates will carry more weight than any team the Dukes have faced this season.

However, I still think the Dukes should beat the host Ottawa eleven.

They don't seem to have let their two recent conference victories go to their heads and they hold a lot of respect for their opponents tonight.

Thus, they should play a heads up game and win the N. C. I. C. Northern division title.

Twenty-seven fellows will make the trip this evening, leaving Dixon at 5 o'clock. The game is scheduled to start at 8.

In addition to the gridgers, themselves, Coaches Lindell, Winger and Sharpe, Athletic Director Bowers and two or three student managers will fill out the local delegation.

The Bucks can tie for the Northern crown if they win tonight. Also fighting for a share of the title will be DeKalb at Sterling. Should Dixon lose and DeKalb and Ottawa win, the latter two schools would be knocked for the lead and Dukes would drop into third.

Rock Falls, which tied Princeton for the Southern honors and then lost the coin toss, enjoys an open date this weekend.

Hall Township, whose conference record reads 3 losses, one tie, will engage the Princeton gridgers in an inter-division match. Mendota and Geneseo will both be battling for their first top victory and third place in the Southern half of the conference in their contest tonight.

BOWLING

The reason for Myers & Nolan's defeat at the hands of the Stables five has just been announced to me. . . Lyle Myers, Dixon's leading men's style prophet, was attired in one green sock, one brown . . . And it is common knowledge that such a combination as that would disrupt the morale of any team.

Exceptional bowling scores were not particularly plentiful last night, but they deserve mention because among the 200ers was a member of the Dixon Telegraph outfit, Bill Burfeindt. Bill shot a 205 in his second game, picking up a 4-7-10 split in his last frame.

Drenner, 224, Pople, 212, Ellis, 205, Winebrenner, 203, and McCordie, 202, were the other high scorers.

Reynolds Wire Takes Two from Runnerup Sparky's Fenders

TONIGHT'S SCHEDULE

Major League, Fri., 7 p. m.
The Hunter's Co. — Reynolds Wire
Lepper Motor Service — Sunnysbrook Hub Tavern—Sweeney & Oester
Freeman Shoes—Dixon Paint

The Stables Commercial league bowling outfit stopped Myers and Nolan's upward surge by pasting a 3-0 defeat on them last night to drop them from third into a three-way tie for fifth.

The Stables team now shares the runnerup spot with Sparky's Fenders, five games back of National Tea.

Sparky's keggers could take only one of the three games in their match with Reynolds Wire. National Tea was an easy 3-0 victor over Dixon Telegraph.

Dixon Hatchery gained undisputed possession of fourth place by virtue of its 2-1 triumph over the Round-Up.

Lincoln Lanes

The G. R. O. P. Ladies' league at Lincoln Lanes got in an extra night of play yesterday with Operations No. 2 taking over the loop lead when Employment No. 2 forfeited.

The Ordnance Dept. was beaten 1-2 by Employment No. 1 to fall into third behind Central Calculating which won three in a row from Cafeteria.

The A. E. M. Dept. keggers beat Comptrollers No. 1 three straight, and in so doing set a new team series record, 2236.

ROUNDUP Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Oct. 30—(AP)—The heights of something: Every Thursday noon Columbia's football coaches hold open house for sports writers at the training table on Morningside Heights . . . At one end of a long table, Head Coach Lou Little is being badgered to pick a winner between Penn and Army, both of which drubbed his Lions . . . "I'd be a fool to do it," argues Lou. "They're both good teams" . . . You don't learn much at these gatherings, but the ham and eggs are good.

COLAN COLLECTED—

The Coast Guard seems to be getting a guy with plenty of courage in heavyweight Johnny Colan, who was sworn in today . . . Instead of dodging the Friday the 13th jinx, Johnny is trying to set a record by fighting on three of those days . . . He faced Jimmy Webb at Madison Square Garden Friday, Feb. 13, again on March 13 and on Friday, Nov. 13, he's scheduled to take on Nate Bolen at the Chicago stadium.

SPORTPOURRI—

Portland, Ore., will toss a civic dinner in honor of Johnny Pesky Monday night . . . The Detroit Red Wings put out $1,000 for expense money to look over seven amateur hockey players this fall and had to send them home sight unseen when the kids couldn't get passports to leave Canada . . . Looks as if racing were going to the dogs. Capt. John Hay Whitney's contribution to racing's victory week program at Belmont Park is 20 of his Jones (or Norwich) terriers, which will be sold at the track.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR—

Roland Hughes, Roanoke (Va.) World News: "I thought those things were outlawed, certainly our city council is against them, but here comes Whirlaway along with a revival of the 'Walkathon'."

SERVICE DEPT.—

Paul Moss, former manager of Billy Soose, is to be the new recreation officer at the Norfolk naval training station . . . When Capt. Wilson "Sparky" Sparhawk, former Akron U. footballer, came home on furlough from somewhere in the Caribbean, his only complaints were that listening to a broadcast in Spanish took the edge off the World Series and that the suspense was terrific when the boys got the halftime score of a grid game over the air then had to wait three weeks for papers with the final result.

BERTELLI ABOVE .500

Notre Dame—Angelo Bertelli of Notre Dame completed 9 of 18 passes in the 21-14 defeat of Illinois to remain just above .500. The Irish quarterback has tossed 75, completed 38 good for 606 yards.

WARD RENOMINATED

New York — Holcombe Ward was renominated to serve his sixth consecutive term as president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

PINSETTING RECORD

Los Angeles—John Procko, Hollywood pinsetter, established a record by setting 258 1/2 lines in a day. Then he joined the Navy.

TOOTH RINGS

Like trees, teeth have growth rings, found in the enamel and dentin. These "rings" reveal periods of illness and undernourishment, according to tests.

Here's the Inside Story on Dizzy Dean's Finish

By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Sports Editor

New York—Ever hear the inside story of the finish of Dizzy Dean's career as a top-flight pitcher? John Carmichael, of the Chicago Daily News, sat in on a fanning bee recently and heard Ol' Diz tell it. Here's guest columnist Carmichael's report:

"And the minute I let the ball go," said Dean, "I felt something snap. My arm fell down. It was dead. I never was worth a damn after that. It never came back."

"It has been five years, now, since the day in Washington at the All-Star game that Earl Averill smashed that line drive off Dean's foot and brought to a premature close one of the greatest careers in baseball history."

"By nightfall of that fatal day, Dean's toe was as black as coal and swelling to the size of a man's fist. He went back to St. Louis barefooted. Couldn't begin to get a shoe on. When Doc Hyland (the Cardinal physician) saw it he was worried, Dean reminisced. 'He told me I shouldn't let it go for a couple of days but they told me in the clubhouse over there it wasn't broken . . . just bruised. Well, Doc put splints on it and there I was on crutches.'"

McKechnie Warns Diz
"The Cardinals went east, without Dean. Within 10 days they had slumped to 3 1/2 games out of first place. 'Branch Rickey called me up,' continued Dean, 'and asked me if I could join the club. Said he knew I couldn't pitch but I might pep up the club. So I joined the club in Boston.'"

"I just got into the clubhouse and Frankie Frisch asked me if I could pitch. I told him yes. I never said no in my life. The spirit was sticking outta the front of my shoe but we were fightin' for a pennant."

"Well, Dean pitched. 'I couldn't take my full stride, so I was throwin' from way back here . . . and he showed what he meant. . . I didn't have much . . . couldn't get nothing on the ball, but we went along nuthin-nuthin until the seventh. Bill McKechnie had the Braves then and he was coaching at third base and watching me and once he called: 'Jerome, you're hurting yourself. You're not natural. Look out!'"

Still Gabby
"Then in the seventh I got a strike on Bill Urbanski and let another ball go. That's when I felt the snap. Yes, sir, just as plain. My arm felt like lead and McKechnie, he came running out to the mound and he said: 'Jerome, you've ruined yourself . . . you've done it.' I had, all right. I was finished up. I got a single in the 11th and they never even put a runner on for me. I could hardly walk, let alone run. We lost, 1-0, in the last half."

"That was on a Wednesday and the following Sunday Dean tried again in Brooklyn. This time he went 14 innings to a tie . . . game called. 'But I wasn't foolin' myself,' Dean said, 'I was through. Leo Durocher knew it, too, and he and Frisch had a fight that night over it. Leo kept hollerin' out: 'You wanna kill the man? Get him outa there.'"

"Nobody did. Dean paused. 'I figure I'd just been in my prime now. I hadn't even learned all about pitching. But it can't be helped and I was lucky anyway. . . .'"

The following year—1938—Dean was sold to the Cubs for $185,000 and three players. He stayed with the Cubs two years, spent half of 1940 with Tulsa and returned to the Cubs. Then he quit baseball to broadcast games in St. Louis. He's still on the air—gabby as usual!

by torchlight, flashlight, lanterns, candles, or even matches.

The telephone system remained in operation through use of an emergency battery system.

An eight-man medical detachment from Camp Robinson was ordered to Berryville, with medical supplies. An appeal for assistance was sent to the Red Cross at Little Rock.

The city hall and court house, two of the few buildings remaining intact in the business district, were converted into emergency hospitals, but in the early hours there was little the workers could do for the sufferers—no medical supplies, no nurses, and only three doctors to care for the scores of injured.

Rea Nelson, undertaker, said 22 bodies had been brought to the funeral parlor in the early morning hours, and he expected there were many more dead buried in the ruins.

"They just can't get in there until daylight. We don't have any idea how many may be missing," he said.

Some of the escapes were amazing.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Fanning were uninjured when the tornado wrecked their bedroom, but the featherbed on which they were sleeping and the comfort which they had over them vanished.

Berryville, one of the oldest communities in the Ozark region, is an important wholesale and jobbing center, servicing the northwest portion of Arkansas, and adjacent areas in Missouri.

EDITOR'S STORY

Berryville, Ark., Oct. 30 — (AP)—When I arrived here with the doctors from Harrison last night everything was pitch black except for a few flashlights and lanterns.

The town was strewn with debris and wreckage and you couldn't tell where the streets stopped or started. The entire west side of town was just a level area of twisted timbers.

Rescue workers were pulling people out from under the timber. All those that weren't hurt were helping and didn't have time to talk.

The bodies that I saw were all mangled, some of them pretty badly. Some of those that hadn't been hurt very badly were walking around, soaking wet, in a daze but trying to help anyhow.

E. G. Guise, 31, vocational agriculture teacher in the high school which was destroyed, told me he heard the storm coming, pulled a mattress over his body and that the next thing he knew he was lying up against a fence. He was taken to a Harrison hospital.

Will Probated Thursday

The will of the late Walter E. Worthington of this city who passed away Oct. 19 of this year, was admitted to probate in Lee County court late yesterday by Judge Grover Gehant. The inventory lists personal property of the value of $1,037.09 and real estate valued at $9,500. The widow is named the executrix of the estate and sole beneficiary during her life time after which the property is to be divided equally between two daughters, Mrs. Anna Marie Baxley and Mrs. Ruth Angell.

In Circuit Court

A decree for divorce was granted Mrs. Rose Moser in the Lee county circuit court today in her petition in which she charged William Moser with desertion. The couple were married July 7, 1913. Harry Schick has filed a complaint for divorce in the circuit court in which he charges that Betty Schick deserted and abandoned him four months after their marriage. The complaint states that the couple were married May 3, 1941 and the date of desertion is placed at Sept. 3 of the same year. A complaint in chancery has been filed in the circuit court in which Guy A. Cox is the plaintiff. T. Lloyd Traugher and Georgia Traugher and the unknown heirs of James Aldrich, deceased, are named as defendants. The action involves the title to two lots located in Lee center, one of which was obtained by Aldrich Sept. 6, 1844.

enemy of the United States, called on witnesses who testified of Haupt's movements from the time he left his home here 16 months ago and his return with the other agents last June.

"Among government witnesses yesterday were Stanley Kluczyk, the Haupt family landlord, and his wife, Barbara, Kluczyk told of young Haupt's departure in June, 1941, for Mexico, accompanied by the son of the defendant Vergins.

Earlier, William Leibl, 20, a private in the U. S. Marine Corps, testified that Haupt, whom he had met last May in Stuttgart, Germany, had told him he fled from the United States because FBI agents were seeking him for spreading Nazi propaganda.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kluczyk testified that they had seen young Haupt with his parents last June.

"Slow Downers" Fined $200 in Police Court

Chicago, Oct. 30 — (AP)—Describing the case as "probably the first of its kind in the country," Judge Oscar S. Caplan today fined two Negroes $200 and costs each on disorderly conduct charges for their part in a slowdown in a war production plant.

The fines were held in abeyance until Jan. 15 when they will be vacated if they are no further violation.

The defendants were Dacey Sanders, 42, and Solomon Brown, 36, vice president and steward, respectively, of the AFL United Auto Workers union local 786. Both are employed in the galvanizing department of the Wood Manufacturing Company.

The charges were brought by Lieut. George Barnes of the police labor detail. He was summoned by company officials who alleged employees were holding up production because of wage dispute had not been settled.

Ford Tire Factory to Be Shipped to Russia

Detroit, Oct. 30 — (AP)—Arrangements have been completed with the U. S. government for purchase of the Ford Motor Company's tire factory here for transfer of its equipment to Russia under the lend-lease program, Ford officials announced today.

The announcement followed brief negotiations between William M. Jeffers, federal rubber director, and Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co.

The machines will be dismantled and prepared for shipment as soon as final details of the agreement are settled, the Ford announcement said.

New York, Oct. 30 — (AP)—The British radio reported today that eight more Austrians have been executed by the Germans at Graz, where it said there had been an average of one execution a day since mid-September.

Zombies Enter In- to Divorce Suit

Los Angeles, Oct. 30 — (AP)—Out in Hollywood, one of the better known South Seas bars limits its customers to two zombies. Zombies, for the uninitiated, are tall, toe-tingling concoctions composed of various types of rum, all potent.

The drink became a matter of record yesterday in the contested divorce suit of Mark T. McKee, 54-year-old airlines executive and father of 12 children, and his wife of nine years, Evelyn 34, mother of one of the children.

Mrs. McKee, who testified earlier that she had given her husband advice on how to woo a 24-year-old girl—"keep your clothes neat, manicure your nails and perform other alluring grooming"—was describing a party attended by herself, her husband and Max De la Fuente, Peruvian consul here.

She said her husband boasted of drinking eight zombies at a New Orleans Mardi Gras.

"You mean," she quoted De la Fuente as exclaiming, "you drank eight zombies and lived?"

Whereupon, she continued, McKee offered to do it again—and did, ending up by doing a pirouette on the dance floor.

The matter of zombies was incidental to cross-examination of Mrs. McKee, who denied that she ever had entertained the idea of a divorce so she could marry De la Fuente.

Preparations Being Made for Campaign for Dixon's Scouts

"By helping the Boy and Girl Scouts, you are helping Dixon," said Mrs. Grace Ritson, executive secretary of the Girl Scouts, in making an appeal for contributions in the four-day Scout campaign, which starts next Wednesday.

Mrs. Ritson pointed out that the boys and girls who belong to the local Scout organizations are the future leaders of the community. The money which they will receive in the drive will finance their activities during the coming year. The goal has been set at $3,000.

At present, all the Scouts, both boys and girls, are engaged 100 per cent in war work, Mrs. Ritson explained. The girls, for example, have formed a Girl Scouts agency which meets once a week but which is working everyday.

"The Scouts spend all their spare moments," Mrs. Ritson said, "caring for children, doing Red Cross work, practicing first aid, signal work, trail blazing, and other activities which might prove useful in an emergency." Preparatory work for the fund-raising campaign is progressing with all the various committees meeting with their chairmen to receive orders for the campaign.

Start Drafting Salary Stabilization Rules

Washington, Oct. 30 — (AP)—A hand-picked crew of treasury experts today dug into the job of drafting detailed salary stabilization regulations, the broad outline of which now indicates that the only unorganized white collar workers definitely doomed to go raiseless for the duration are those earning more than $25,000 a year net income.

Except for deductions of federal income taxes, customary charitable contributions, life insurance premiums and fixed obligations, the annual take of the boys in the upper brackets was firmly pegged at the $25,000 figure.

But the treasury's interpretation of Economic Director James F. Byrnes's salary regulations made it a vastly different story for the big majority of folk who earn less than that each year.

In the long list of unorganized executive, administrative and professional people who receive less than $5,000, plus those of all classes between $5,000 and $25,000, treasury spokesmen said there was scarcely a situation which absolutely precluded the possibility of a raise.

St. Francis 'Old Main' Building Is Destroyed

Loretto, Pa., Oct. 30 — (AP)—Fire destroyed the "Old Main" building, combination dormitory, chapel and administration office, at St. Francis College early today with a loss that Father Ambrose Burke, librarian, estimated in excess of $100,000.

Father Burke said, four hours after the fire broke out, that "as far as we know" the 150 students and priests escaped from the structure.

Colorado's Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument was visited by 19,307 persons in 1940.

U. S. Armed Forces

deeper into the axis' El Alamein line defenses in conjunction with a ceaseless allied air offensive taking steadily heavier toll on the enemy's rear, official reports from the front announced today.

At the end of the first week of the offensive to decide the fate of the Mediterranean, however, neither side apparently was ready to throw its main armored forces into the struggle—neither the Brits to exploit their gains nor the Germans to plug the menacing gaps in their lines.

Infantry was emphasized in a British communiqué which dealt mostly with the damaging blows on the axis from the air and reported the land action in these four sentences:

"During the night of Oct. 28-29 our infantry extended gains in ground formerly held by the enemy. A further number of German prisoners was taken.

"There were minor engagements with the enemy armored troops yesterday on whom casualties were inflicted.

"Fighting continued."

The announcement indicated that the British were following the tactics to which they have adhered to for the most part in the present campaign, attacking at night and consolidating their gains during the daylight hours.

The communiqué did not specify the extent of the advances or the sectors in which they occurred.

The bulletin told of ceaseless aerial attacks by day and night on axis airfields and advanced positions.

"A fighter raid on a landing grounds in the Matruh area was particularly successful and at least three large grounded aircraft were destroyed and three others damaged," headquarters said. "There was a slight increase in enemy air activity and at least four enemy fighters were destroyed in combat."

British air losses in the entire Mediterranean theater were listed as one plane.

U. S. Chips Thrown In

The United States has tossed a lot of blue chips into the battle and the weight of American industrial power is being felt more and more in this strategic theater of war.

America's biggest job in the Middle East is furnishing planes and crews to help the RAF batter the enemy from the air and supply the Eighth Army with tanks, guns, munitions and other equipment to carry forward on the ground.

The race to feed American-made implements of war into the Middle East remains, meanwhile, one of the dramatic and little known phases of the struggle.

When this correspondent was en route to Cairo less than a month ago the question often was heard: "When are American troops going into action in the desert?"

U. S. Furnishes Supplies

The answer is that American ground troops are not in combat in the Middle East. This show belongs principally to Britain's re-fueled and re-equipped Eighth Army, aided in the air by the RAF and the U. S. Army Air Force.

But the United States can take great pride in the fact that the British were able to make the first offensive move after the battering and the loss of materials which they suffered last summer. For it was American labor, factories and shipyards which put the tools into their hands that enabled them to strike.

Handling the supply job is Major General Russell Maxwell, a 52-year-old veteran long familiar with supply problems. He is directing a tremendous undertaking which includes not only getting supplies into the Middle East but the movement of materials across the Persian Gulf route to Russia.

Reds Plan Assault

Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 30 — (AP)—German news agency reports reaching here today from Berlin said the Russians are massing "powerful shock armies" for a winter attempt to break through the Germans' Vitebsk-Smolensk line some 275 miles west of Moscow.

These reports said signs are increasing daily that the Russians, despite the continuing heavy German pressure on the Stalingrad and Caucasus fronts, are assembling troops with full aviation and armored support in the Rzhev-Toropets region.

The Russian plan, it was said, apparently was to send one of these armies westward from Rzhev toward Velikiye Luki with strong armored and motorized support and then make a southward encircling sweep in an effort to reach the Dvina river near Vitebsk.

At the same time, the reports said, another shock group would set out from Rzhev southward to Vyazma, then wheel toward Smolensk in an attempt to form a junction with the northern wing.

The agency said that the Germans already were trying to forestall the offensive with heavy aerial bombardment of concentration centers and rail lines leading from Moscow and Kalinin into the massing areas.

BIOGRAPHIES

Thumbnail Sketches of Candidates Seeking Illinois Offices

Chicago, Oct. 30 — (AP)—Here are brief biographical sketches of eight men who will be at the top of the ticket in next Tuesday's general election in Illinois: Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, 45, of Chicago, Republican nominee for reelection as senator. He was elected to the senate in 1940 to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. James Hamilton Lewis. Brooks, a lawyer and former Cook county prosecutor, has been active in Republican politics for a decade. A native of Burlington, Illinois, he attended Northwestern University and the Universities of Chicago and Illinois. He is married and has a son. During World War I he served with distinction in the Marines. Before Pearl Harbor, Brooks was an active isolationist.

Rep. Raymond S. McKeough, 54, of Chicago, Democratic nominee for senator. He is completing his fourth successive term in the house of representatives. Before he took public office he was in the investment security business. McKeough was born in Chicago and educated at the De LaSalle institute. He is married and has two daughters. Throughout his public career he has been a constant supporter of President Roosevelt.

Stephen A. Day, 60, of Evans-ton, Republican nominee for reelection as congressman-at-large. He is completing his first term in that office, after having campaigned for it since 1920. Before going to Washington Day practiced law and gained notice as a student of the constitution. He was born in Canton, Ohio, and is the father of five children. During prohibition he worked hard for repeal. In congress before the war he was an isolationist.

Benjamin S. Adamowski, 36, of Chicago, Democratic nominee for congressman-at-large. He served 10 years in the general assembly, two terms as majority floor leader of the house. A native of Chicago, he was trained as a lawyer at De Paul University. Adamowski is married and the father of two boys. He is a Roosevelt man.

William Donald Forsyth, 57, of Springfield, Democratic nominee for state treasurer. Although this is his first candidacy for public office, he has been active among young Democrats for several years. Upon his graduation from the University of Illinois in 1929, Forsyth entered the life insurance business in Chicago, later moving to Springfield to serve in several appointive state offices. He is married and has two children.

William G. Stratton, 28, of Morris, Republican nominee for state treasurer. Stratton, one of the youngest men on the ticket, decided to campaign for treasurer after reappointment eliminated the congress-at-large post to which he was elected in 1940. Before entering politics two years ago he was a sales engineer. Stratton was born in Ingleside, educated at the University of Arizona. He is married and has two daughters.

Vernon L. Nickell, 49, of Champaign, Republican nominee for Superintendent of Public Instruction. Born in Bellflower, he attended both the Illinois State Normal School and the University of Illinois. Before taking up the profession of teaching, he is president of the Illinois Education Association and since 1930 has been superintendent of Champaign's public schools.

John A. Wieland, 49, of Calumet City, Democratic nominee for reelection as Superintendent of Public Instruction. He has served two terms in that office. Wieland has lived in Illinois all his life. He learned his teaching degree at the Illinois State Teachers College and the University of Illinois. Wieland is married and has three children.

Wright, a Marine Corps correspondent.

Honoring a flag of truce borne by a Japanese officer, 28 of 30 Marines were massacred when they sought to take custody of "a bunch of Japs" who, the officer said, were isolated on a nearby island and wanted to surrender.

As the 30 Marines drew near the island they were met without warning by "a terrific burst from several machine guns hidden in the underbrush," Wright wrote.

"They were mowed down like so many stalks of corn," he added, "except for the two who escaped and swam to safety."

The United States, during the first half of 1940, imported 84,051 pounds of bergamot oil.

control must be created," he said. "I would use such parts of the League of Nations as exist now—like the economic and labor sections—as the nucleus of a new organization."

"There must be a two-fold organization. First, you must have in the league all the nations, big and little, which you can trust. Then there must be a standing committee, probably comprising the four powers—America, Britain, Russia and China—who maintain peace."

"When you get real peace you some day will have Germany, Italy and Japan back in the league. But they can't be entrusted with arms for a long time to come."

"The older Germans are averse to war but the younger are Hitlerites. We must maintain control in Germany until the new generation can be educated."

"We should get the league functioning with peace. There are a lot of things we can't do without it. For instance, we must feed the hungry peoples and we say we are going to move back into their own countries those who have been transported by Hitler."

"The peace conference could lay down principles—as regards boundaries for instance—and then the league would take over. You can't get just decisions out of the atmosphere of a Versailles conference. The league would provide the right atmosphere."

"It could give good opinions about such great problems as those involved in the boundaries of Poland and Czechoslovakia."

When Cecil referred to the Versailles atmosphere he of course had in mind the animosities and in some cases the fierce hatreds which were in evidence. I was there and saw the treaty signed, and never shall I forget the bitterness registered in the livid faces of the German delegates as they left the palace after the ordeal. You didn't need anything more to tell you there would be another war.

"All the people of good will should consider these things now," said Cecil. "There is a general movement toward an international institution of some sort. In the new league we can't permit the guilty to arm. They must be controlled. We can't allow another war."

"However, we can't exclude them economically from the league. We mustn't break up Germany. That wouldn't last for an hour."

"The war guilty must be tried, but they must have guarantees of fair treatment. They should be tried before special tribunals. For Hitler and other leaders there must be an international tribunal. They must in some way be removed from society."

Michigan Senatorial Nominee Is Injured

Detroit, Oct. 30 — (AP)—Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson of Detroit, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, suffered a neck injury today when a train on which he was a sleeping car passenger struck four standing freight cars at Durand, Mich.

The engineer of the train, L. E. Eddy, 50, of Durand, was killed when he leaped from the locomotive cab just before the crash. One other passenger suffered injury.

Ferguson, jolted as he lay in his berth, remained aboard the train until it arrived at the Grand Trunk station here when he was rushed to Henry Ford hospital for examination.

Two weeks elapse between the new and the full moon.

To Survey All Labor

Murray and AFL President William Green were among those talking over the manpower problem with Roosevelt yesterday. They indicated later that no action for compulsory service in war industries would be taken until they had completed a survey of available man and woman power.

The chief executive told reporters he would not put it that way. They did talk, he said, about the general reservoir of available labor in this country, male and female. It was felt, he added, that with close to 6,000,000 people in the armed forces and so many men already at work in war factories, not many men are left to fill up needs for the coming year for some 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 additional workers.

The problem of ample labor, Roosevelt indicated, is not acute at the moment. Mighty new places, he said, are shut down now for lack of labor. This situation may

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLO

Washington, Oct. 29—Economic Stabilizer Jimmy Byrnes stabilized an important unnoticed wrinkle of Mr. Roosevelt's executive order on the $25,000 salary limitation.

Roosevelt's order directed that salaries be limited to $25,000 "after payment of taxes allocable to the sum in excess of $25,000." This would really have cut the maximum allowable national salary to $15,000, as the taxpayer would have been required to pay on the average around $10,035 (married with no dependents) in taxes on his $25,000.

But the Byrnes regulations came forth with some realistic mumbo jumbo which seems to mean different. It says:

"No amount of salary . . . shall be paid . . . after reduction by federal income taxes on the amount of such salary, would exceed $25,000."

This means, according to official interpreters, that the taxpayer will get $25,000 net.

In truth, instead of limiting his actual salary to that figure, it means that on an average about $67,000 can be paid to the individual—a horse of a different color than has been painted in the announcements and headlines.

The Navy has followed old line procedure on the transfer of Admiral Gormley as fleet commander from the Pacific. No explanation has been offered beyond the bare announcement of orders.

Stories are being told among congressmen that the three cruisers lost there were not wide awake and that this circumstance caused the decision to transfer Gormley shortly thereafter, although the decision was not announced until now. The cruisers, however, were lost the night of Aug. 8-9 in the opening offensive operations, and the first landing of the Marines, and it is hard to believe they could have been asleep.

The date of Gormley's orders has not been given, but it is understood to be much more recent than the cruiser sinkings. Apparently, it came a few weeks ago, following the far more costly sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp, which was caught by a submarine in a manner not fully explained.

Ordinarily, dispositions of destroyers and air scouts from an aircraft carrier are supposed to protect her, and generally do, but this one got in three torpedoes.

was also hit, and no claim has been made that either of the Jap submarines was sunk.

The change in Pacific commands may be more fully explained when the details of these losses are made public.

AFL is supposed to be working up a report against buffeted maritime Commission Chairman Emory Land, which will tighten the spot into which he is being pushed by union labor groups.

Ostensibly, this new drive against Land is being predicated on the suggestion, made in a New York speech, that union labor organizers during this war should be shot a sunrise, or something approximating that. The suggestion was obvious hyperbole, as Land did not draw a pistol, and no serious movement to shoot anyone has yet been started.

The roots of AFL resentment against Land, however, run back into the closing of the Higgins yards in New Orleans and the repurchase, after the war, of some ships sold before the war.

Pending in the senate naval committee is Lands' nomination to be a full admiral, where it has strangely met delay. It was submitted by the president some weeks ago, before the New York remarks. Labor, which has influence on that committee, may be able to hold up the promotion indefinitely.

HENRY SOMMER (Contributed)

Funeral service was held Tuesday morning at 9:30 from St. Patrick's Catholic church for the late Henry Sommer, who passed away at his home, 917 College avenue, this city, Sunday, Oct. 25 at the age of 76 years, one month and 28 days. Mr. Sommer lived most of his life around Dixon and Tampico, where he engaged in farming, moving to Dixon eight years ago.

He had been in poor health the past year but during the last nine weeks he failed rapidly until the end relieved his suffering. He was born in Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 27, 1866 and was the sixth son of George and Margaret Glockner Sommer. On Sept. 4, 1894 he was married to Miss Victoria Henry. To this union five children were born, who survive with his beloved wife. All were present at his bedside when he expired. The survivors are: his wife, one son and four daughters, Lawrence of Dixon; Mrs. Barbara Whaley of Rock Falls, Mrs. Margaret Dawson of DeKalb, Mrs. Mary Darby of Tampico; Mrs. Louise Steinko of Elwood, and two brothers, George and Adam Sommer and one sister, Mary, all of Portsmouth, Ohio. Eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren also survive. Five brothers preceded him in death. The casket bearers were: Donald and Robert Steinko, Ronald and Jack Dawson, Melvin O'Brien and Clarence Whalen. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Tampico.

accompanied by Mrs. O. N. Eckburg, sang several hymns. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery, at Dixon.

Martha Manetta Leydig was born Nov. 10, 1871 in Shanksville, Pa. She was the second daughter born to Jonathan and Maria Leydig. In her youth she moved with her parents to Dixon, Ill., where she resided until her marriage on March 30, 1898 to George A. Sturtz of Dixon. Later, they moved to Amboy to make their home. To this union three children were born, two sons and one daughter. One son, Cloy, is attached to the medical department at Camp Lubbock, Texas. The other son, Harold, is stationed at Camp Rucker, Ala. Mrs. Sturtz was baptized in the Lutheran faith, and throughout her life, she was an example of a true Christian character. She passed away on Saturday evening, Oct. 24, 1942 after a lingering illness.

She leaves to mourn her passing, her husband, two sons and one daughter, Mrs. Harold Jenner of Amboy, four grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. Flora McWilliams of Dixon, Mrs. Frank Brooks of Anaboy; three brothers, Louis Leydig and Irvin Leydig of Dixon and Milton Leydig of Helena, Mont. She was preceded in death by her parents, one sister, Mrs. S. M. Hinds and H. W. Leydig of Dixon.

Second WAACs Training School Will Be Set Up

Daytona Beach, Fla., Oct. 30—(AP)—The world-famed sands of Daytona Beach—where Sir Malcolm Campbell and other daring drivers shattered auto speed records in days gone by—soon will respond to the tap-tap-tap of thousands of drilling WAACs.

A vast training center is being set up here to school women soldiers, and an indication that the Army is counting heavily on the help of the WAACs in the war was seen in the announcement by Col. Don C. Faith, Commandant, that 8,000 recruits eventually will be in training here at one time.

The WAAC school at Fort Des Moines, Ia., has been re-designated the first training center and its teaching staff will be divided equally with the school here, designated the second training center.

A vanguard of 300 WAACs will arrive next week and 900 more will be assigned here early in December. By February, they will arrive for training at the rate of 1,800 every two weeks.

Green Asks Clean-Up of Scrap Collection

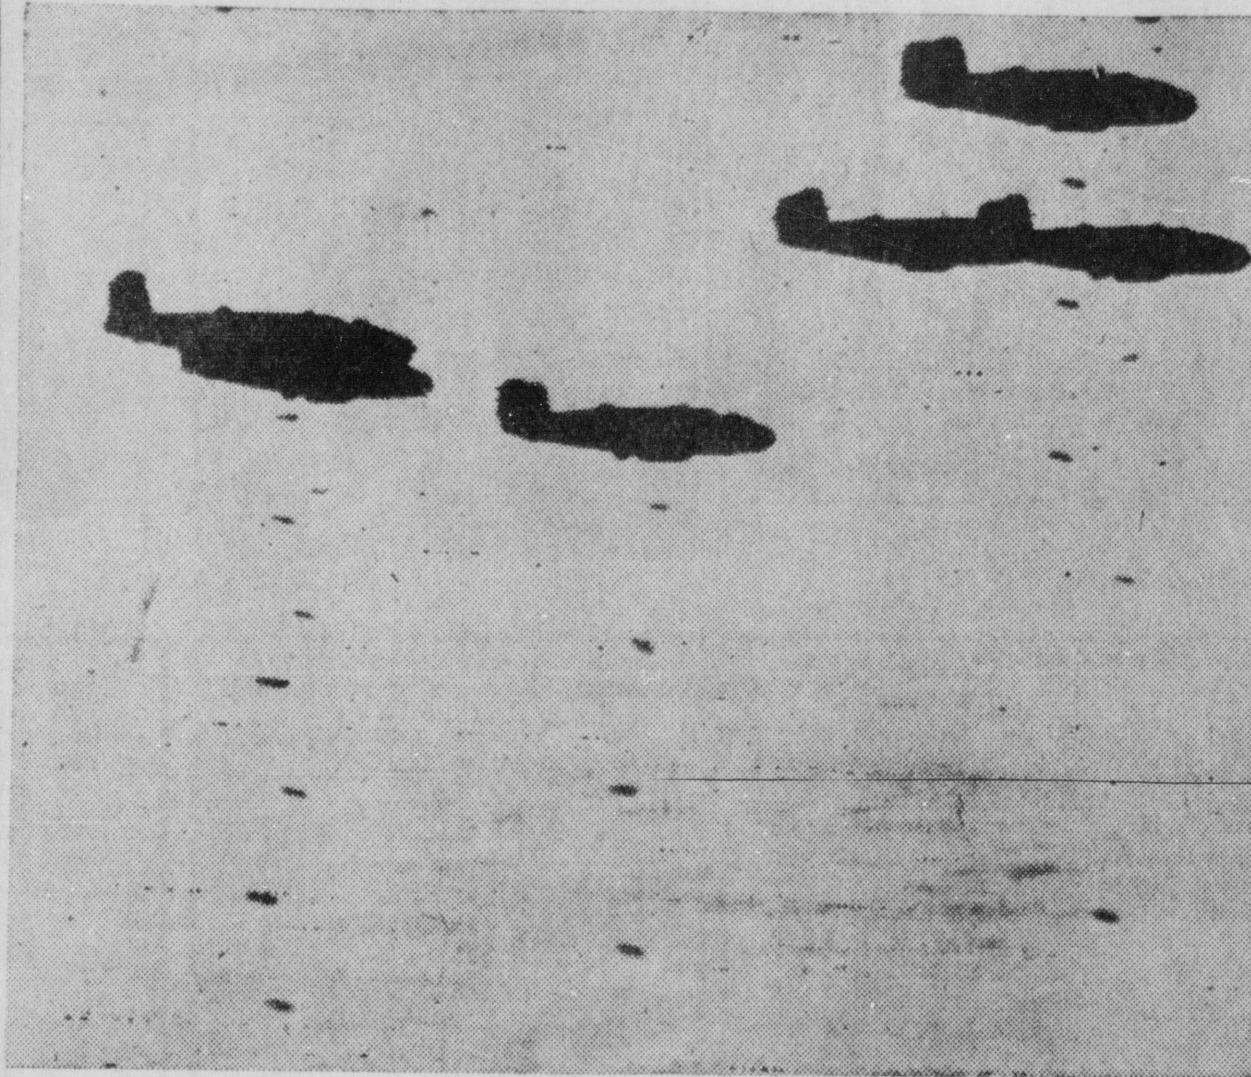

Chicago, Oct. 30—(AP)—Gov. Dwight H. Green today called on residents of Illinois to conduct a statewide scrap clean-up on Nov. 11, Armistice Day.

"Collecting scrap on Nov. 11 will hasten the next Armistice," the governor said.

Illinois holds many thousands of tons of ungathered scrap, despite the state's impressive total of approximately 400,000 tons of farm and home scrap shipped to steel mills from Aug. 1 to Oct. 30. Governor Green declared, adding that remaining scrap should be collected before cold weather immobilizes it.

Steel mills and foundries in the Illinois area must have 14,000 tons of salvaged scrap daily for capacity production, the governor said.

Dealers in Liquor and Tobaccos Get Tax Instructions

The Dixon office of the Collector of Internal Revenue today issued the following notice to retail dealers in liquor and cigars and cigarettes:

"The congress of the United States has enacted new legislation increasing the tax on distilled spirits, fermented malt liquors and wines, effective Nov. 1, and dealers in distilled spirits, fermented malt liquors and wines must take an inventory at the close of business Oct. 31. The inventory figures should be inserted on the floor stock tax return and filed in duplicate with the Collector of Internal Revenue, Chicago, on or before November 30.

"The tax shown to be due by the return may be paid at the time you file the return and inventory, but if you do not pay the tax at the time, payment must be made not later than Feb. 1, 1943.

"The Revenue Act of 1942, just enacted, also increases the tax rates on large cigars and large and small cigarettes, effective November 1.

"The act imposes a floor stock tax on those articles and all dealers must take an accurate inventory at the close of business on October 31, of all stamped cigars and cigarettes, effected by the new law, regardless of the quantities in stock.

"Dealers should apply as soon as they can to the Collector of Internal Revenue for blank floor stock tax return forms which will be supplied as soon as they are received from the printer. The inventory figures should be retained for insertion in the return form when received.

"The law requires that a complete and accurate return of floor stock taxes shall be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue, Chicago, on or before the 31st day of December, 1942, such return to be accompanied by remittance of floor stock tax due."

Buchalter Must Die for Ordering Murder Says N. Y. High Court

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 31—(AP)—New York's highest court decreed today that Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, one-time New York city industrial racketeer, must die in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison for a 1936 slaying he is accused of ordering.

The 45-year-old Lepke, now serving a 44-year-to-life federal sentence for various crimes, was convicted last December in Brooklyn with two henchmen, Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss and Louis Capone, of the murder of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn candy store owner. The state charge Lepke ordered Rosen's death when he feared the storekeeper would turn informant for Thomas E. Dewey, then Manhattan prosecutor investigating the trucking racket.

Frank Gannett, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, will deliver on Sunday evening, Nov. 1, from 8:15 to 8:30, Eastern war time, the closing national broadcast of the campaign on behalf of the Republican party. He will speak over a coast-to-coast hookup of the Blue network.

The address will tersely review the outstanding issues of the campaign—issues which explain the pronounced Republican trend noted by all political observers and writers, and reflected in all political polls of the past two months.

In closing Gannett will make clear how the election of a Republican house of representatives, and a strengthening of Republican membership of the senate will tend to clarify the muddled waters at Washington and compel a more orderly, more efficient conduct of the war.

As a newspaper publisher, Gannett will speak from experience about a censorship that has withheld from the people a true and timely understanding of war events, and show wherein the administration's suit against the Associated Press aims at ultimate government control of the press.

The Illinois Commerce Commission that they had surveyed the route and asked for a transcript of testimony at extensive hearings being conducted by the ICC in the controversy over abandonment of service on the midstate lines.

The WPB, Shepard said, is delaying action on its requisition order, designed to obtain used rail for relaying in war plants and military establishments, pending further investigation by the ODT. Shepard made arrangements to meet Saturday in St. Louis with A. P. Titus, ITR president and general manager, to obtain further information.

Cooperation Pays This Quartet of Wisconsin Farmers

Fond du Lac, Wis., Oct. 30—(AP)—A quartet of farmers, operating 700 acres of land, has solved the wartime manpower shortage by pooling up an idea germinated 36 years ago.

The story begins in 1912 when Simon Schmitz, E. D. Jones and Peter Schmitz, neighbors, talked their problems over and decided to try pooling operations and expenses.

Cooperation enabled them to reach capacity production during the last war when they couldn't hire help.

Sons now carry on the fathers' holdings. Martin Schmitz, Flint Jones and Adolph Schmitz operate the original farms, and Herbert Schmitz has joined the group by purchasing an additional 120 acres. Martin farms 240 acres, Flint 180, and Adolph 160. Flint employs an elderly married couple.

"Working with the other boys did the trick," he said. "Here's the setup in a nutshell:

Farm 700 Acres

"The four farms total 700 acres. All work is done by six men. Each of us four operators is equally responsible for all equipment; all of us aim to have an equal investment in farm machinery. We keep records of the time put in by each man, use of equipment, repair parts, and all other items during the year.

"At the close of each year we tally up the score and see what each of us has coming. Never been any complaints either."

As an example, Herbert's farm isn't well established yet, but by trading labor for use of the other men's equipment, he expects to hold up his share of the expenses.

Martin, Flint and Adolph all milk the same number of cows, usually about 30 head of purebred Holsteins. They produce their own feed and each takes care of his extra labor problems. Each helps the others when necessary—trading or swapping work and equipment.

Two sons in high school help Martin during vacations and after school. Two younger daughters help their mother who has 500 laying hens.

The group, by closer feeding and management, increased milk production this year to 705,000 pounds from 635,000 last year.

Belgian Government Protests Against

London, Oct. 30—(AP)—The Belgian government-in-exile protested today against deportation of Belgian workers to Germany, saying it had been confirmed that men between 20 and 40 years old in the Liege region were conscripted for work in the reich.

Mount Morris Woman's club members will have the privilege of hearing an extensive traveler and educator on Monday evening when they meet at the home of Mrs. L. G. Finch for the November meeting. Miss Esther Barton, principal of Lincoln grade school at Dixon will speak on "Schools Here and There," emphasizing a theme of education of which department Miss Edna Coulson is chairman.

Special music for the occasion is being arranged by Mrs. Donovan Mills, music chairman of the club.

All officers and committees and department chairmen are urged to be present for the board meeting at 7 p. m., prior to the meeting. This meeting was previously scheduled to be at the home of Mrs. L. G. Schaar.

Rev. N. A. Bolinger of Rock Island was attending to business affairs in Mount Morris this week.

Methodist Church

Chicago Tribune's Reply to Federal Trust Suit Filed

Answers Allegations Against AP in New York U. S. Court

New York, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The publishers of the Chicago Tribune, in a separate answer, contended Thursday in Federal court that the anti-trust action against The Associated Press would transform it from a private cooperative enterprise into a public monopoly subject to governmental domination if it is compelled to open its membership polls to all applicants.

"The anti-trust laws of the United States," the Tribune said, "were designed to prevent monopoly not to foster monopoly."

Col. Robert R. McCormick and the Tribune Company expressed belief that if government dominance of The Associated Press and other news agencies is effected it would abolish free competition between newspapers and news agencies and end the world preeminence of the American press which, they asserted, had been attained.

The Tribune contended that news agencies are an instrumentality entering into the publication of newspapers and therefore are embraced by the constitutional guaranty of freedom of the press. This right would be abridged, they argued, if the court granted the government's request for an injunction under the anti-trust laws.

The defendants agreed with the government statement that the product of The Associated Press is of great national importance but disputed the contention that it must serve all newspapers needing or desiring its service. On this point they said:

Not Public Service Corp.

"The AP is not a monopoly or a quasi public service corporation which, by reason of law or historical precedent, must serve all comers in the manner of innkeepers, common carriers and the like must serve everyone.

"If the government should succeed in subjecting the AP to this 'requirement', then AP, on account of the allegations that its service is indispensable to all newspapers, would shortly embrace in its membership practice ally all newspapers in the country it would thus, by government fiat, be transformed from a private enterprise into a public monopoly subject to rates, service, operation and the like.

"Since Tudor and Stuart times until this case, no government of an English-speaking people has attempted to establish a privilege, patent or monopoly of the dissemination of news. The totalitarian states of today establish monopolies for the purpose of dominating the lives of their peoples by domination of monopolies thus established. The anti-trust laws of the United States were designed to prevent monopoly, not to foster monopoly."

The answer challenged what it asserted was the government's contention that "it is a prerogative to require news services to furnish news to any newspaper which applies, under the pretext that denial of such access constitutes restraint in trade in violation of the anti-trust laws". It was described by the defendants as "a subversion of the purposes and objects of the anti-trust laws and contrary to the spirit and genius of a republican form of government."

The exclusiveness of the mutual return of local news by AP members to the AP is not an unreasonable restraint of trade or commerce nor does it tend toward monopoly, the answer contended. It said this had been admitted by the United States at all times since the organization of the AP and by the formal opinion of the attorney general in 1915.

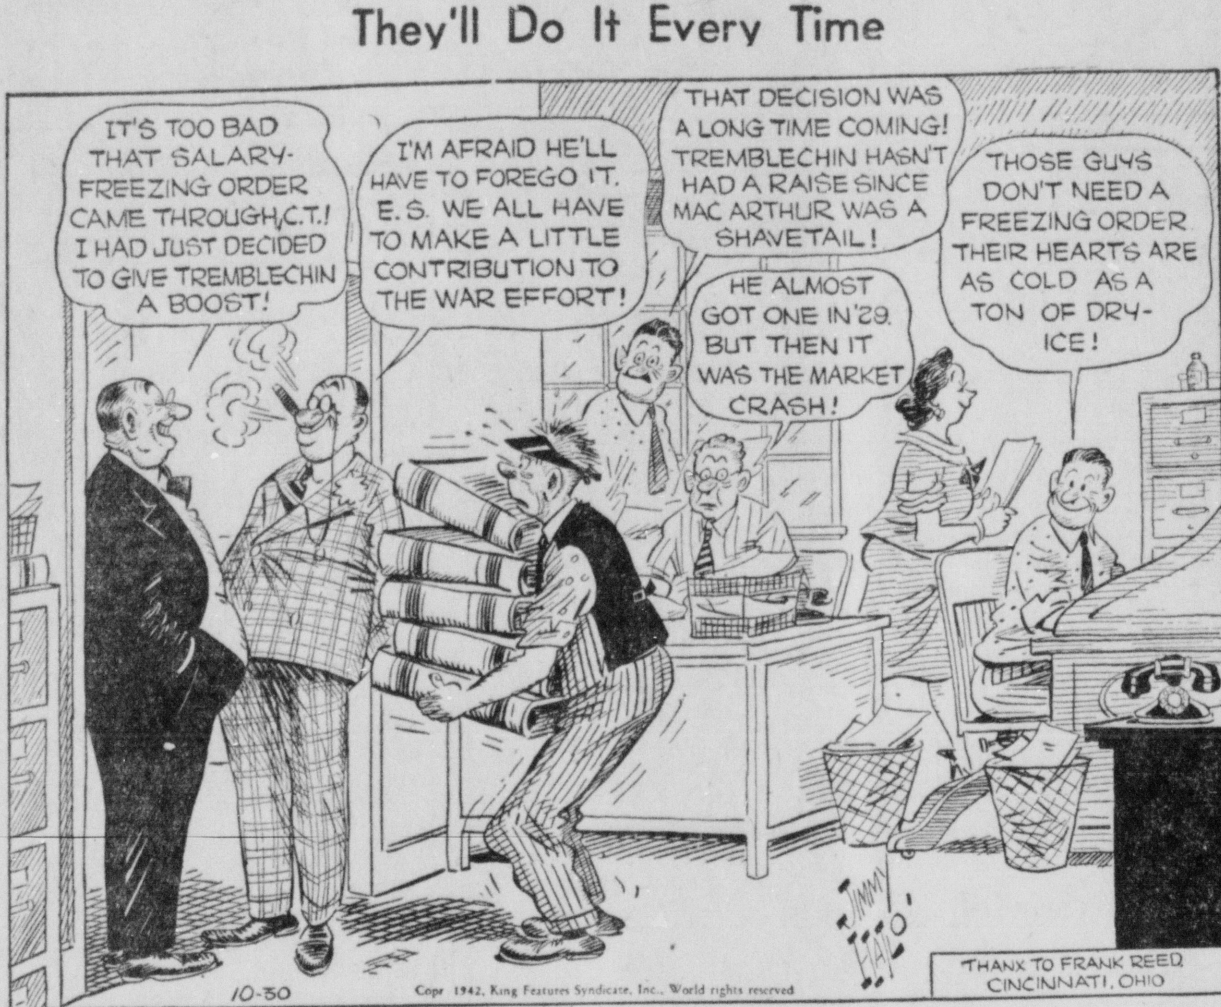

The answer said the defendants rely upon the continued acquiescence of the government in the conduct of the AP from 1900 to filing of the complaint, the written approval of the department of justice to the legality of the AP operations in 1915 and "the failure to take action until this nation has become preoccupied with winning the war and has relaxed its vigilance to preserve guaranteed individual liberties".

It described the government's suit as an effort to induce the judiciary to construe the anti-trust laws to place the press on the common level with commercial or business enterprises for the purpose of control and regulation.

Such an effort the answer described "as an assault on the validity of the bill of rights and other historic charters and precedents which have emancipated man from penal servitude".

The answer denied the government contention that no daily newspaper can exist in this country today without access to the services of a news agency and asserted that the contention a newspaper without AP operates at a competitive disadvantage to one carrying AP news cannot be answered as a universal.

The government made this contention in connection with the denial last April by members of The Associated Press of the applications of Marshall Field for a morning membership for the Chicago Sun and Eleanor Medill Patterson for both morning and afternoon memberships for the Washington Times Herald of which she is sole owner.

Cites Contradiction

Field stated in his application that it was absolutely necessary that the Chicago Sun acquire an AP membership to serve Chicago's interests and compete with other AP papers. The answer filed today said that this statement contradicts what Field has said elsewhere. It added:

"On Dec. 4, 1941 he said 'We have contracted with news gathering services that have world wide facilities and long and sound experience'. Since commencing publication of the Chicago Sun he has many times said that his facilities are complete, that his news coverage is the best and he has claimed on occasions to have scooped competitive newspapers."

Denying that the Chicago Sun's lack of access to AP news picture service had proved a great competitive disadvantage, the answer added that the Chicago Sun could furnish its readers with adequate news photo service if it displayed initiative and diligence in obtaining it.

The rejection of Eleanor Medill Patterson's application, the answer said, did not restrain the Washington Times-Herald in the conduct of its business. The Washington Times-Herald, with UP and IWS has built up largest newspaper circulation in Washington and its owner, the answer said, claims that her newspaper is dominant in the field and that it has the most complete and best coverage of the news.

The publishers of the Chicago Tribune said the newspaper's "preeminence" is due to the free play of the forces of competition and is neither "unwholesome" nor monopolistic, as charged by the government. They added: "The defendants are advised and believe that it is not the province of the government to determine whether the newspaper situation in Chicago or elsewhere does or does not meet its views on the question in charge of the government in respect of the wholesomeness, but that the province of the government is solely in respect of violation, if any, of law."

The answer contended that exercise of governmental control of news-gathering agencies or over their determination of the manner in which and through which the news gathered shall be published is a direct interference with freedom of publication previous to publication.

PROBLEM FOR STATISTICIANS

A reduction of 40 per cent in automobile accident insurance rates has been promised in almost all the states, if not in all of them, and there has been a sharp reduction in automobile accidents and fatalities. The explanation is to be found in the decreased use of automobiles and in slower speeds. The question remains, however, which of these influences is the more important.

We don't know whether statistical analysis is capable of determining just how the credit is to be divided. The problem is one to which statisticians can profitably devote their time. If it can be shown conclusively that a 35 mile speed limit is the principal reason for the saving of life, the fact ought to be known to guide legislatures after the war. — Exchange.

Republicans Hope To Score Gains in State's Delegation

State Chairman Sees Chance to Gain 7 Seats in House

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Illinois Republican leaders think their chances are good to boost the present 16 to 11 GOP majority in the state's congressional delegation, in spite of the automatic loss of one seat through census reapportionment.

Ben L. Berve, Republican state chairman, has said he expects his party to win 23 of the 26 congressional contests in next Tuesday's election, a gain of seven seats. Such a gain would be a big boost to the Republican drive nationally to capture the 53 additional seats the party needs to win control of the house at Washington in the 78th congress.

Republican hopes rest heavily on cracking the Democratic congressional front in Chicago, where eight of the ten districts are represented by Democrats. Of the 15 downstate districts, 12 are in Republican hands.

Chairman Edward P. Allen of the Democratic state committee matched Berve's optimism with a forecast that the Democrats would win five downstate districts that are now Republican, while holding all their own districts.

Where GOP Has Hopes

Four of the now Democratic Chicago districts in which Republican hopes are highest are:

First—William E. King, negro member of the state industrial commission and former state senator, is the Republican candidate against William L. Dawson, a former alderman, for the seat from which Arthur W. Mitchell, only negro congressman, is retiring.

Second—Thomas J. Downs, an attorney and one of the early state presidents of the Young Republican clubs, is the GOP nominee against Alderman William A. Rowan, endorsed by the Democratic organization to succeed Rep. Raymond S. McKeough when the latter was chosen to run for senator. The district frequently has been Republican in the past and has shown GOP gain in recent years.

Third—The Democratic incumbent, Rep. Edward A. Kelly, is opposed by Fred E. Busbey, Republican nominee prominent in American Legion affairs. The district's Democratic margin of over 27,000 votes in 1938 fell to 6,614 in 1940.

Sixth—Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien of Cook county is the Democratic nominee opposed by Raymond E. Treflate, an attorney.

In the state, the Republicans probably would have to sweep the three central and southern Illinois districts now in Democratic hands.

In the 20th (Jacksonville) district, Sid Simpson, Carrollton automobile dealer, is the Republican candidate opposing the incumbent Democrat, James M. Barnes of Jacksonville. The district was Democratic by 3,018 votes in 1940, when 86,630 votes were cast.

Farther south, in the 22nd district embracing populous Madison and St. Clair counties, the retirement of Democratic Representative Edwin M. Schaefer set up a contest between Harry C. Odum of Madison, the Democratic nominee, and Calvin D. Johnson of Belleville, former Republican member of the Illinois house.

Rep. Laurence F. Arnold, Democrat of Newton, is seeking his fourth term in the 23rd district, and his GOP opponent is Charles W. Vursell of Salem, editor of a weekly newspaper.

In his prediction of Democratic gains, Allen said he expected the election of these Democrats in districts now Republican: Montgomery B. Carrott, Quincy, in the 15th district; James D. Carrigan, Peoria, 16th; Fred E. Butcher, Danville, 18th; William P. Roberts, Springfield, 21st; and Kent E. Keller, Ava, 25th.
